In Memoriam: William "Bud" Roeder

William F. "Bud" Roeder, Jr., former city attorney, passed away January 6.

The Chattanooga, Tenn. native served as the City of Fairfax city attorney from 1978 to 2005.

He earned his bachelor's degree from University of the South in 1964 and his J.D. degree from University of Virginia School of Law in 1967.

Roeder served as a president of the Fairfax Bar Association and was on the bar association's board of directors. He also was a member of the American Bar Association and held multiple roles with the Virginia State Bar, including chairman of the Board of Governors.

In Memoriam: George G. Tankard, Jr.

George G. Tankard, Jr., former superintendent of City of Fairfax Schools, passed away January 7.

The retired educator, a Virginia native, served in numerous positions with public schools in Virginia — including area superintendent for Fairfax County Public Schools — and served as superintendent of City of Fairfax schools from 1971-77.

The longtime member of the Fairfax Rotary Club and his wife Madeline served as honorary grand marshals of the City of Fairfax Independence Day Parade in 2012.

In Memoriam: Thomas E. Reed III

Thomas E. Reed III, the city's first real estate assessor, died on January 10.

The appraisal and brokerage professional opened his private practice in Old Town Fairfax in 1964, where he worked for the rest of his life.

In 1965, the Virginia native was hired by the city to assess all real property to be included in the newly incorporated City of Fairfax. Although his employment with the city lasted until the mid-1970s, he continued to work with the city during the years regarding appraisals.

He has a unique legacy: his son Tom is the city's current real estate assessor.
